INDEX

The University of Cádiz is a public institution committed to innovation, research, internationalization, and academic excellence, open to knowledge, society, and culture. It performs intense and diverse activities across its four campuses: Algeciras (a port of knowledge and connection between continents), Cádiz (immersed in its three-thousand-year-old culture), Jerez (the birthplace of flamenco and a global reference in oenology), and Puerto Real (a natural enclave characterized by the biodiversity of its marshes and salt flats).

Our wide academic offering is complemented by cultural and sports activities so that university life extends beyond the classroom². The training addresses the needs of each stage: from the first university years to the acquisition of new skills in accordance with the demands of the labor market. All of this is framed by attention to diversity, equality, and cultural heterogeneity.

From the heart of Andalusia, our university extends and consolidates its international links by coordinating the European University of the Seas (SEA-EU), an alliance of 9 universities on our continent's coasts. It also coordinates the International Campus of Excellence Global del Mar (CEI-Mar), the only marine campus of excellence in Spain with global status; and participates in the International Agri-Food Campus of Excellence (ceiA3), focused on the development of the sector.

Teaching

Our degrees are closely linked to the territory, interact with the productive and socioeconomic fabric of the environment, and achieve high rates of employability.

We work closely with local companies to promote dual training.

Our preparation does not end in the classroom. All of our students enjoy curricular internships in local companies, institutions, and social entities to complement their training in the places where they will later develop their professional careers.

We are involved in a cross-cutting strategy of micro-credentials for the acquisition of knowledge, skills, and competences connected to the needs of the productive sectors of the region to improve the employability and high qualification of professionals.

We are an international and globally connected university. Our students complete their training at institutions on five continents thanks to our internationalization strategy and dozens of mobility agreements with universities on five continents.

We have opted for dual and bilingual education to include in our curricula the talent, knowledge, and higher education needs of the main companies and socioeconomic sectors in our environment and to broaden the horizon and international projection of our university studies.

Transfer and Innovation

With its epicenter at our El Olivillo Business Transfer Center, the University of Cádiz has deployed an intense strategy of transfer and innovation in collaboration with companies, institutions, and research centers in the area.

This close collaboration results in dozens of transfer contracts each year. We want to be the institution of reference for the development and innovation of small, medium, and large companies in the province.

Entrepreneurship and Employability

At the UCA, we extend our teaching commitment beyond the classroom. Our purpose as a university institution is to guarantee quality training that facilitates the personal and professional development of our students, improving their employability and their subsequent job placement.

To this end, we have launched the UCA Employment Portal and implemented a program of actions on our four university campuses: workshops, training courses, conferences, contacts with companies, fairs, a job placement agency...

Almost 20 years ago, the UCA became the first Spanish university to launch an Entrepreneurs' Chair. We are a national and international reference in this field through providing advice and training to entrepreneurs in all phases, from the idea to the materialization of their business project.

We are also an Entrepreneur Support Point authorized by the Business Creation Information and Network Center (CIRCE) enabling you to carry out all the necessary electronic procedures in order to set up your company.

Digitalization

Digitalization has a cross-cutting value and application at the UCA. It involves and affects all centers, services, units, and processes. It allows us to improve what we do, with lower costs, being more sustainable and efficient. We are immersed in a profound process of digital transformation.

Investments in supports and infrastructures made in recent years have meant that digital administration is, by far, the main channel for the presentation and processing of documents in the different areas of university management: teaching, research, services, etc.
